Experimental Forests:

Paths old and new for 2020 Forests

Experimental forests are outdoor learning labs. They are foundational research to regional management across the country. Today, they continue to provide innovative experiments and training for the changing needs in forestry.

Back to The Future: Building Resilience with Ecological Forestry in Lake States Conifer Forests

Jed Meunier's background in disturbance ecology has given him an excellent perspective on forest recovery strategies. He will discuss how we can use the natural, inherent systems conifer forests have developed, and how we can aid and improve these systems to benefit forests.
