Wisconsin Forestry Futuring Workshop

The Wisconsin Forestry Futuring Workshop will employ a “Futures Wheel” to generate a model of the future based on the consequences of an event or trend. It is particularly useful for:

- Thinking through possible impacts of current trends or potential future events
- Organizing thoughts about future events or trends
- Identifying the potential consequences of a strategy

Relying on the experience and knowledge of the participants, this exercise requires a deep understanding of the problem being analyzed, so that the generated future model may be as accurate as possible. In our workshop, we will be working on futures wheel “centers” based on innovations, trends, new and/or amended policies, and events that could impact forest management.
